In this era college presidents play a very specialized role which frequently keeps them from contact with the students and the campus.

Our President Park is an unusual college president. His office is always open and we are welcome visitors. This is one of the great advantages of a small college and President Park's constant interest and accessibility are great factors in making us feel as if we belong to the College and that the College belongs to us.

WILLIAM E. PARK

PRESIDENT

Dean Clifton greeted us at Freshman Orientation. She watched closely as we struggled through that first exhausting year. We still quiver reflexly when we receive a note from her office on the postboard. An eminently fair woman, she stands like justice above us all, but wears no blindfold.

that was the week that was . . .

That was the week that was and the weeks went on with only a few shattering exceptions to the routine. The routine. How many weeks in four years? How many days and hours. The week divided itself into two parts—five and two. One part was endless, the other nonexistent. Schedules changed and seasons changed but there remained a design to the week. Monday followed Sunday—sometimes we hoped it wouldn't!

. . . and then there was light! That light was MONDAY. Why did the week have to begin? Because we had to get to Tuesday, had to shake the blues. Through those doors, can I make it to the caf' before second hour? all those people, appetites . . . hungry for food . . . we hope, knowledge, if not knowledge, grades . . . try the stacks.

The week has restful interludes that cause the tension of guilt. We read magazines in French and . . . "I never took French." We listen to music, people with big earphones on humming off key.

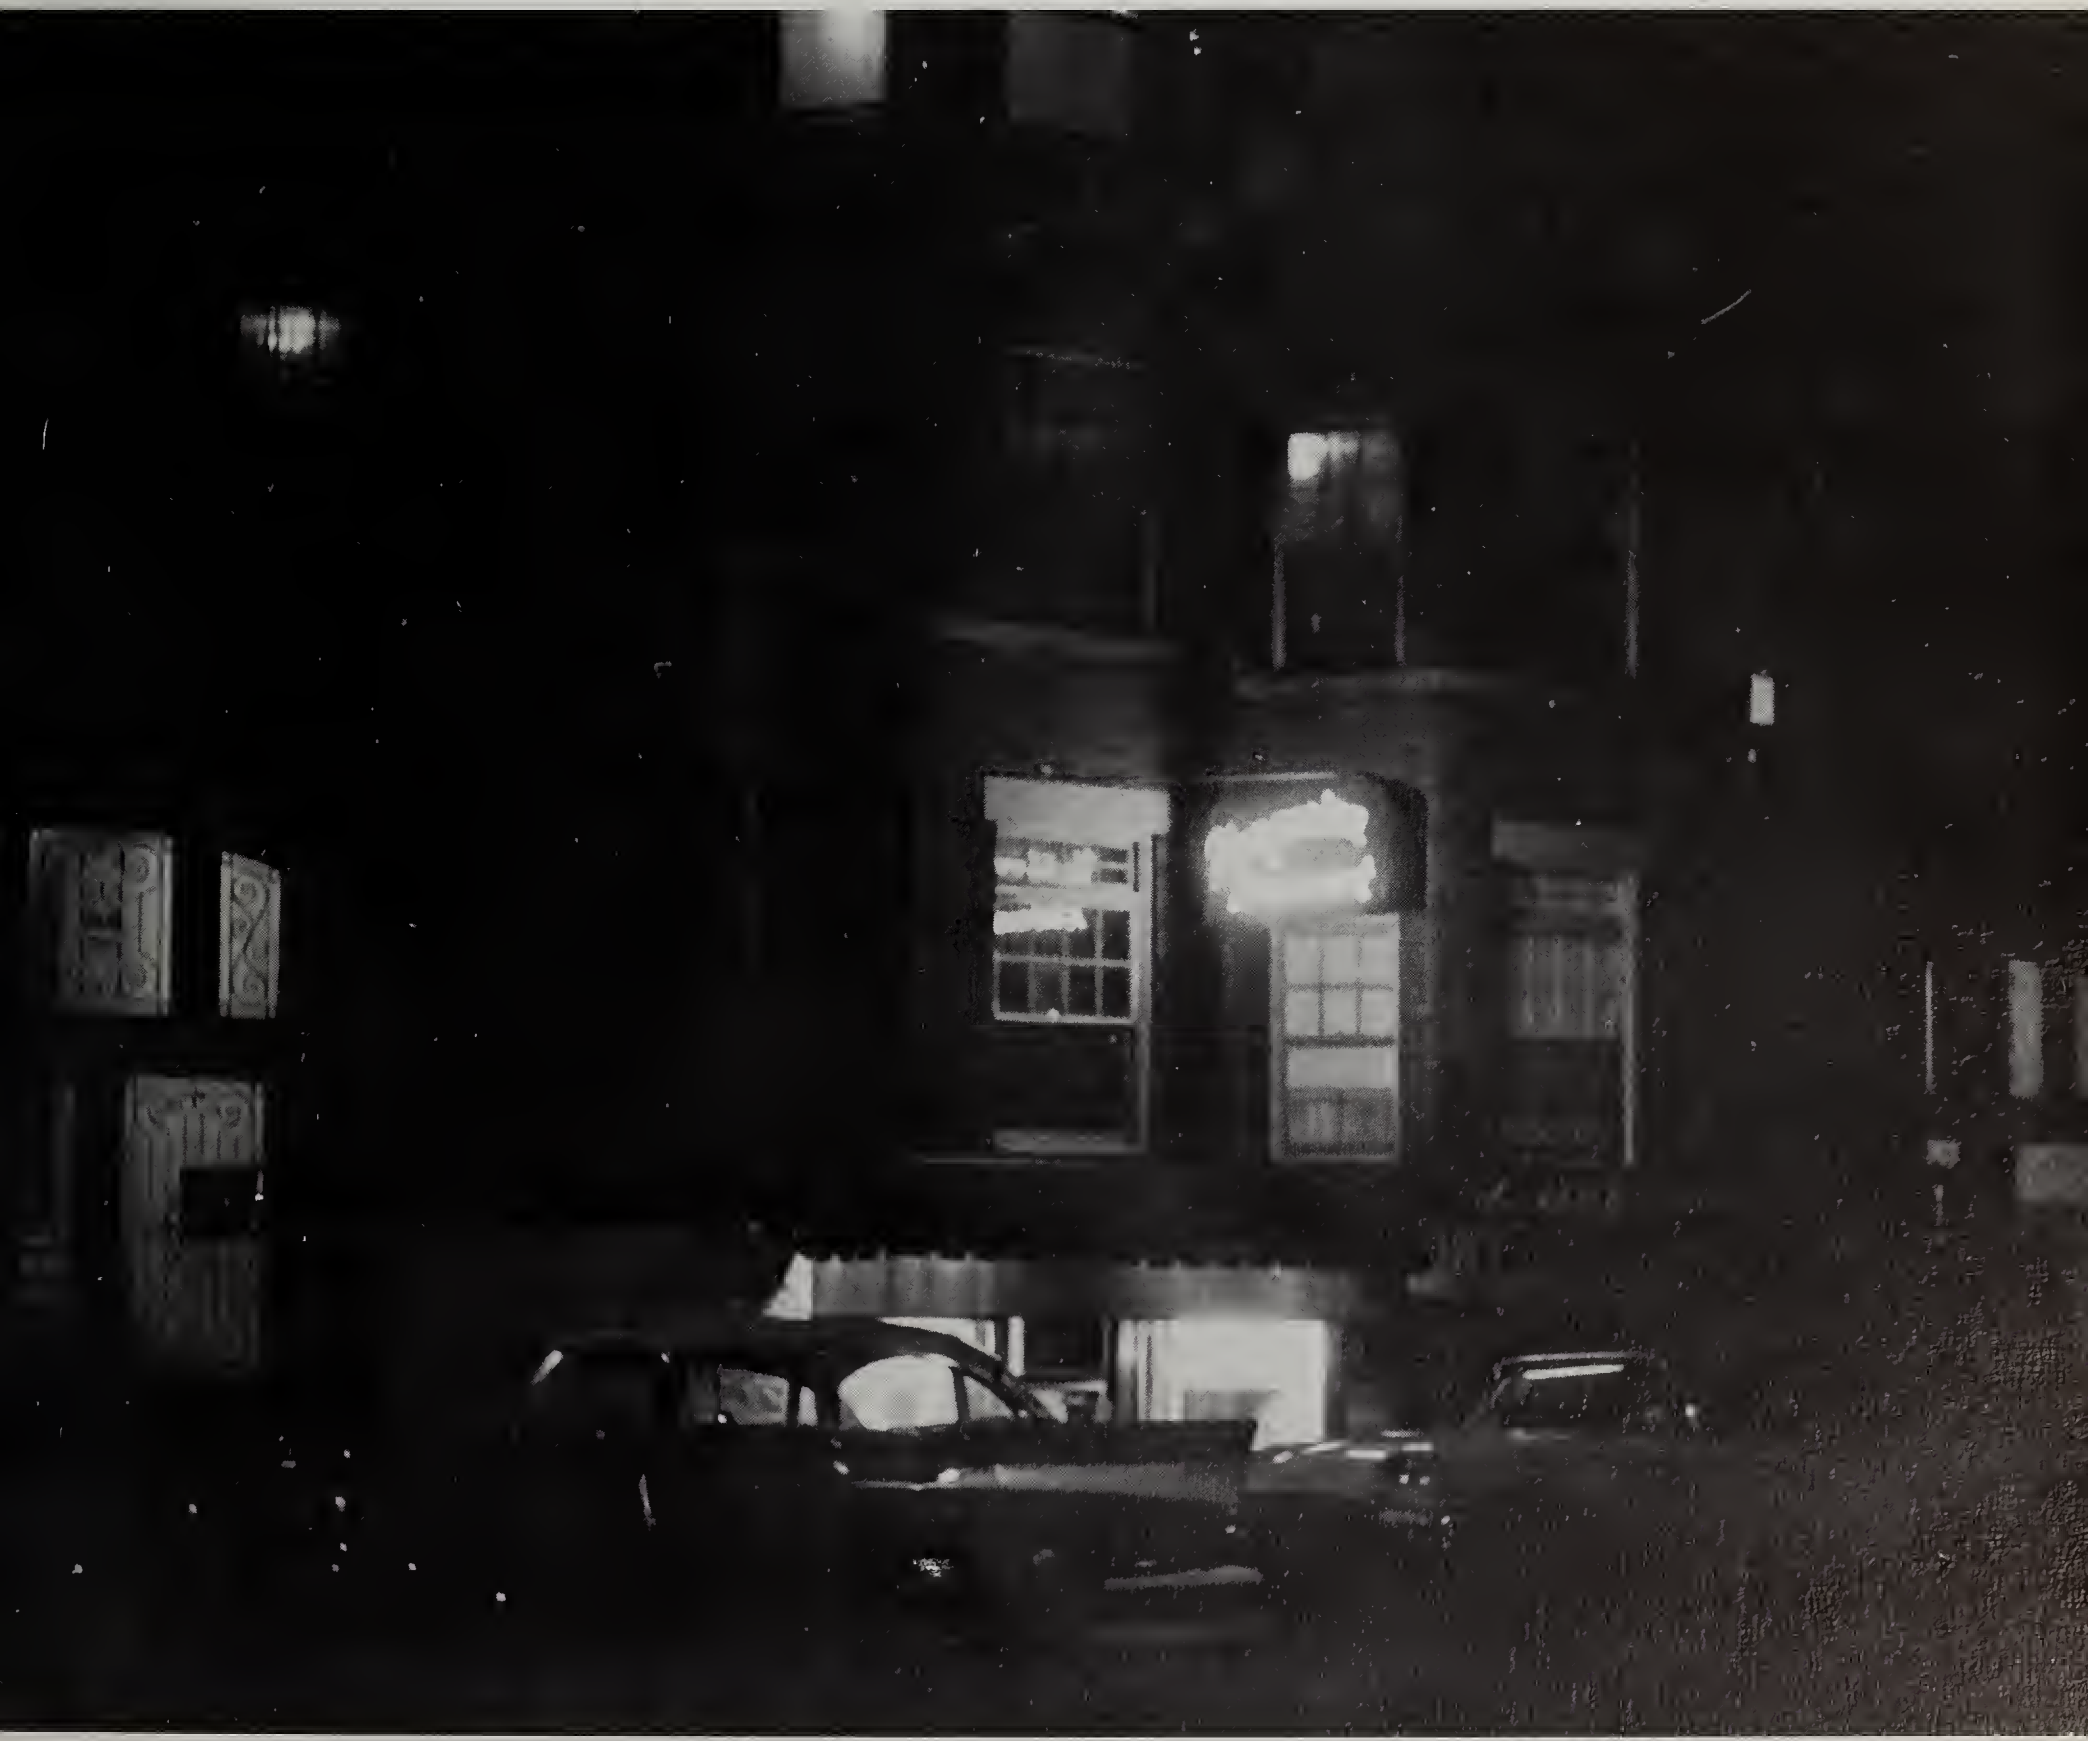
Evacuation. Home to the hearth and board and mailbox enhanced with the exquisite lace of cobwebs. "Oh, can I stand the joy of pork noodle casserole again!? "You know that crack in our wall? The one where the wind whips in? . . . tapioca for dessert—we'll plug up the hole later." We never starve. When we cook for ourselves, we'll really suffer.

That hour before dinner—hour, half hour, maybe just fifteen minutes. Tenth hour lasts too long. Let's wait 'til 5:30, the line's not as long. Can I have the comics? Sure. Then, "call on three . . . you can have the comics meet you in line. Line? How about dinner out?"



Those Wednesday nights do not always pass unnoticed. The smoker set participates—It's "beat Simmons Hall" . . . Terry, Paul, Phil, and Ringo. For once, is Alumnae Hall big enough?

And there are things that take us out of the week . . . learning, hoping, planning and doing . . . the pastimes that help and distract, the ties that bind. More to remember, more to miss when we're members of the "do-you-remember-when" rocking chair set.

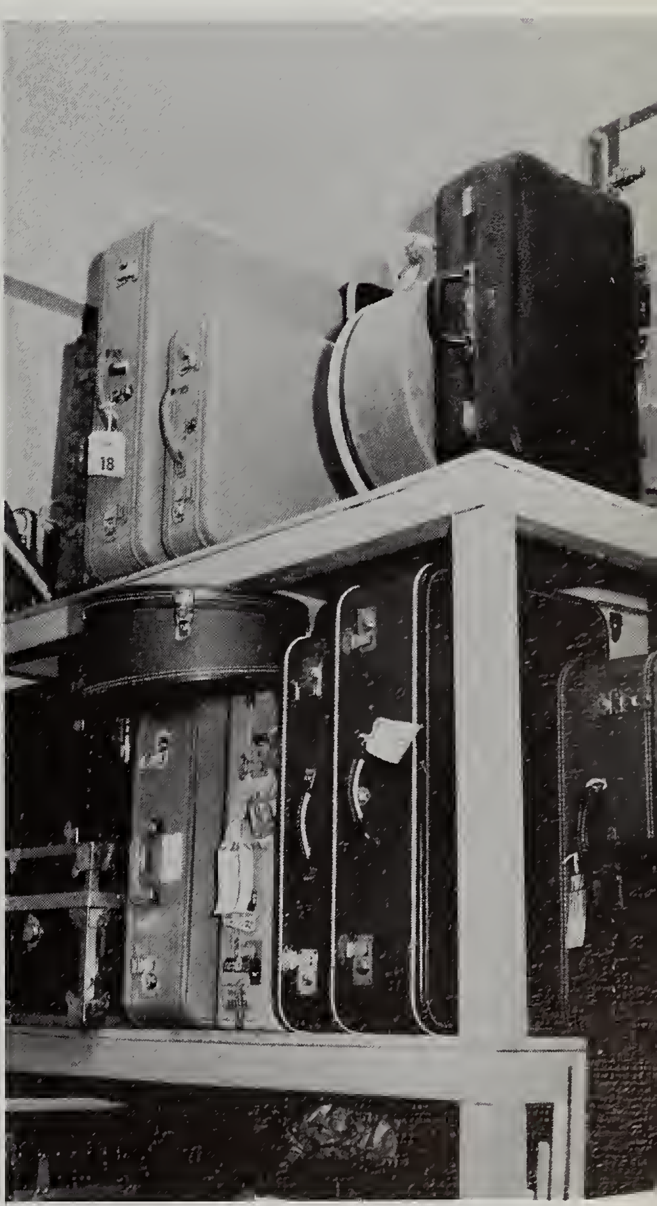
Tradition that wraps a happy glow around the warmest time of year with joy of good song, good food and good friends. The halls were decked with holly, breathing dragons, and laughter.

Friday, when anticipation reaches its peak then starts its downward fall. Five days of looking forward, to two days of nervous exhaustion —Maybe I should have stayed home—time to hit another mixer. But, from the mixer group, "she met someone, but you didn't miss anything." It all started with my Salada fortune . . . and lukewarm tea made more lukewarm by chilled cream . . . a tenth hour and no cookies left when I returned. Then, "would you like the lovely empty floral cookie tin?" It was Friday, all right!



That was the week and those were the weekends. Like the mail and liking the male we went, rain or shine. It all added to the togetherness of being away. The get-ready and go of Friday and Saturday and dawn breaks at noon on Sunday. We have come to know places, streets, signs, and everyone's 21st birthday.

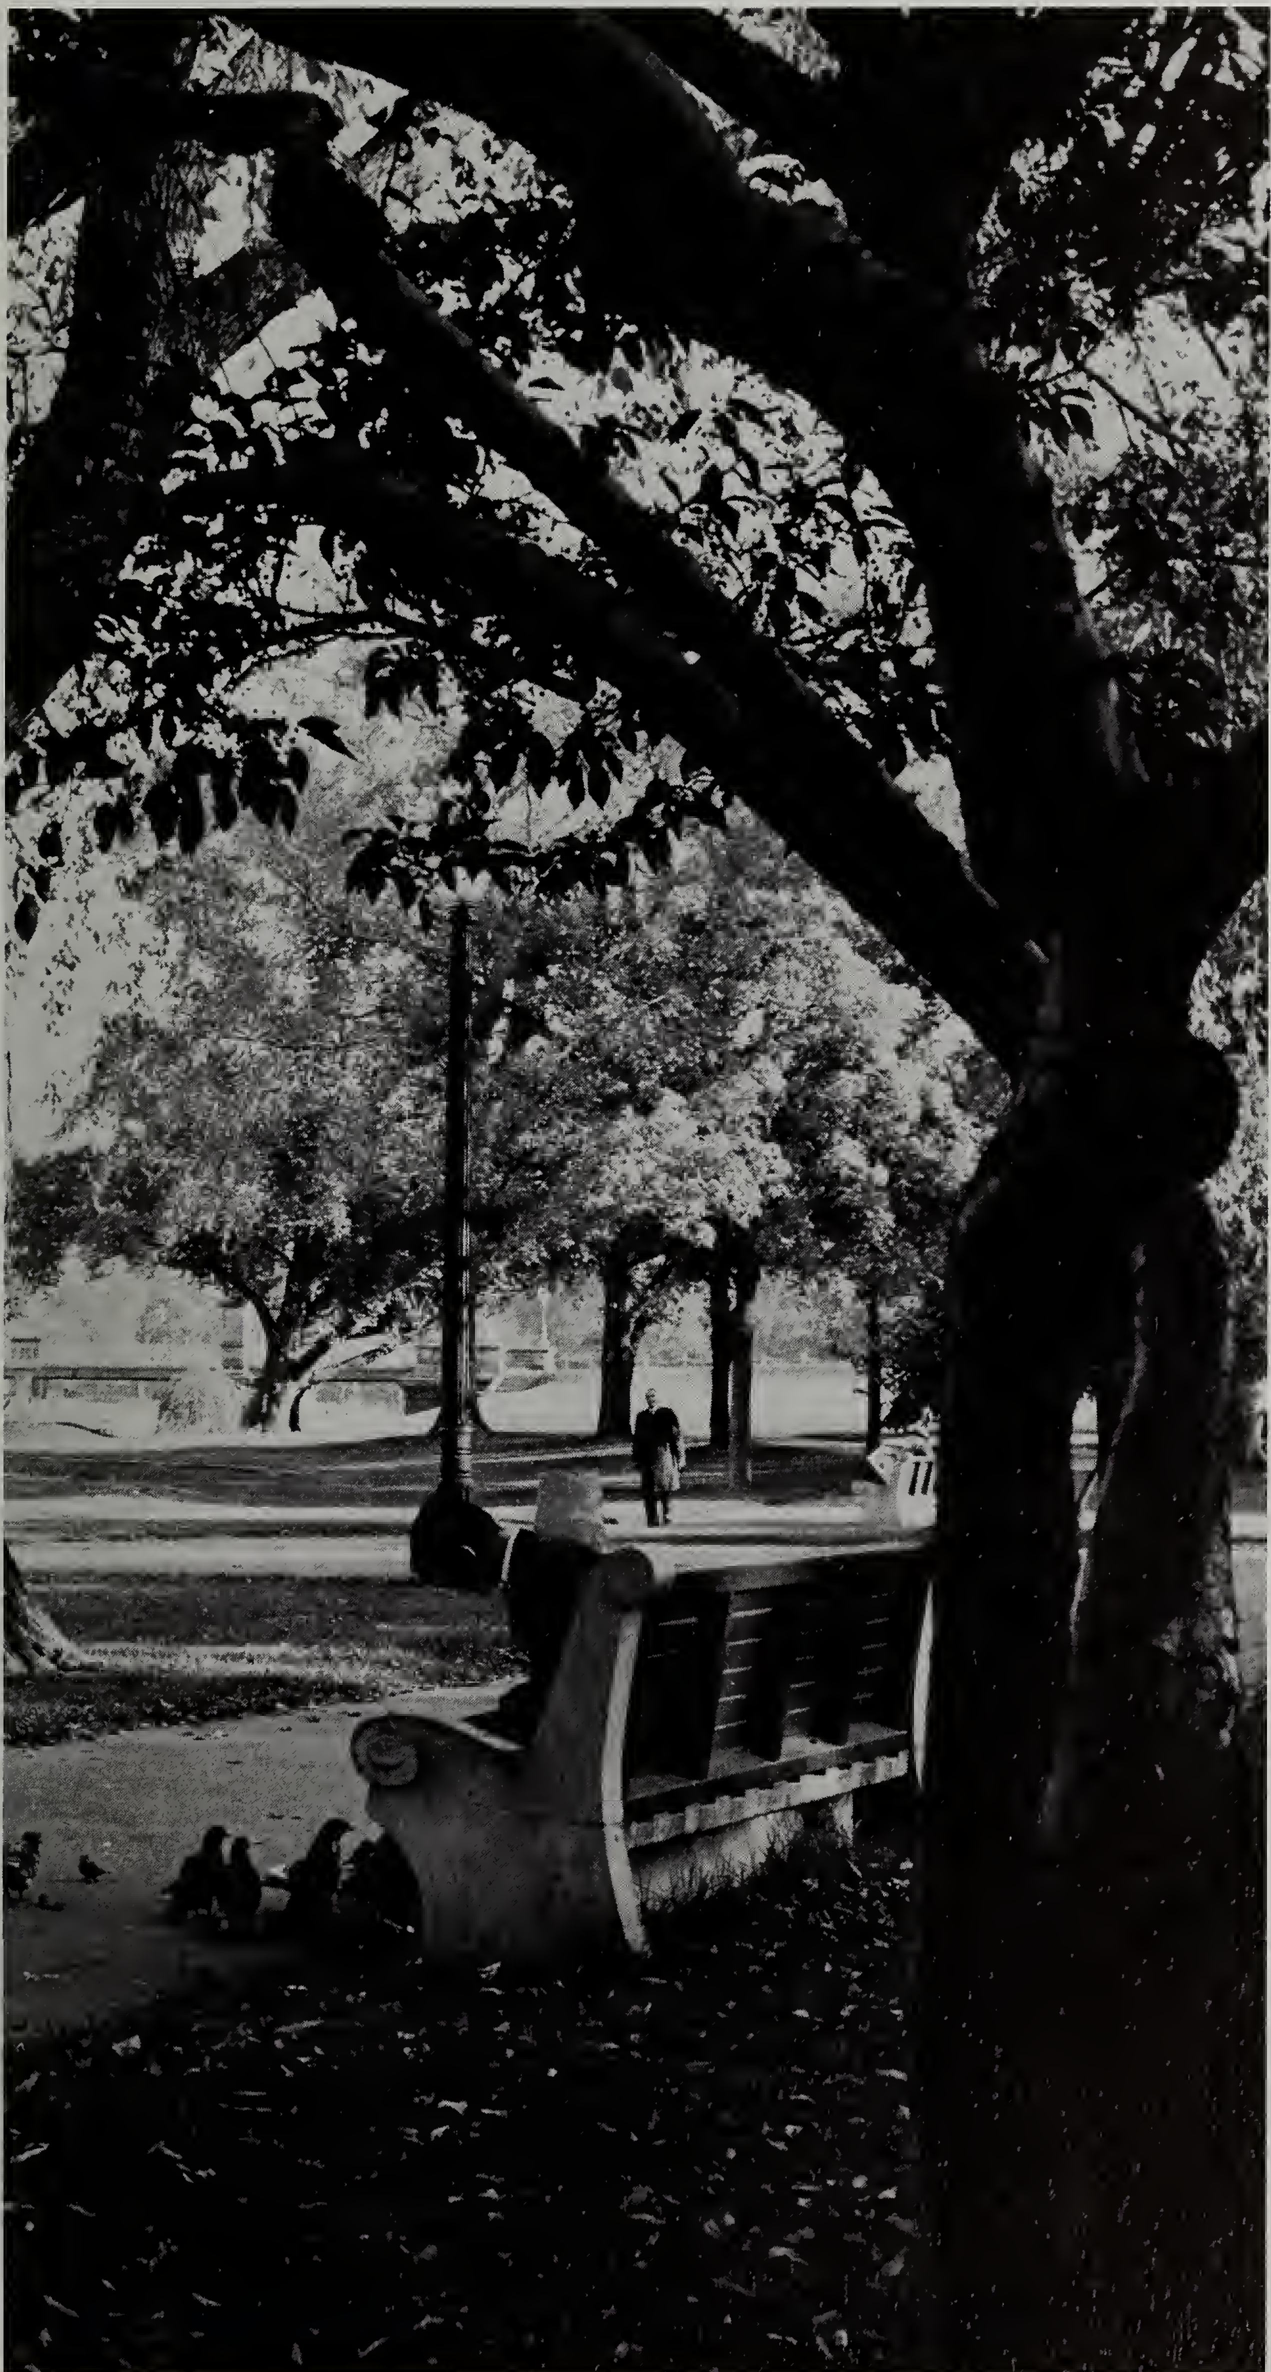
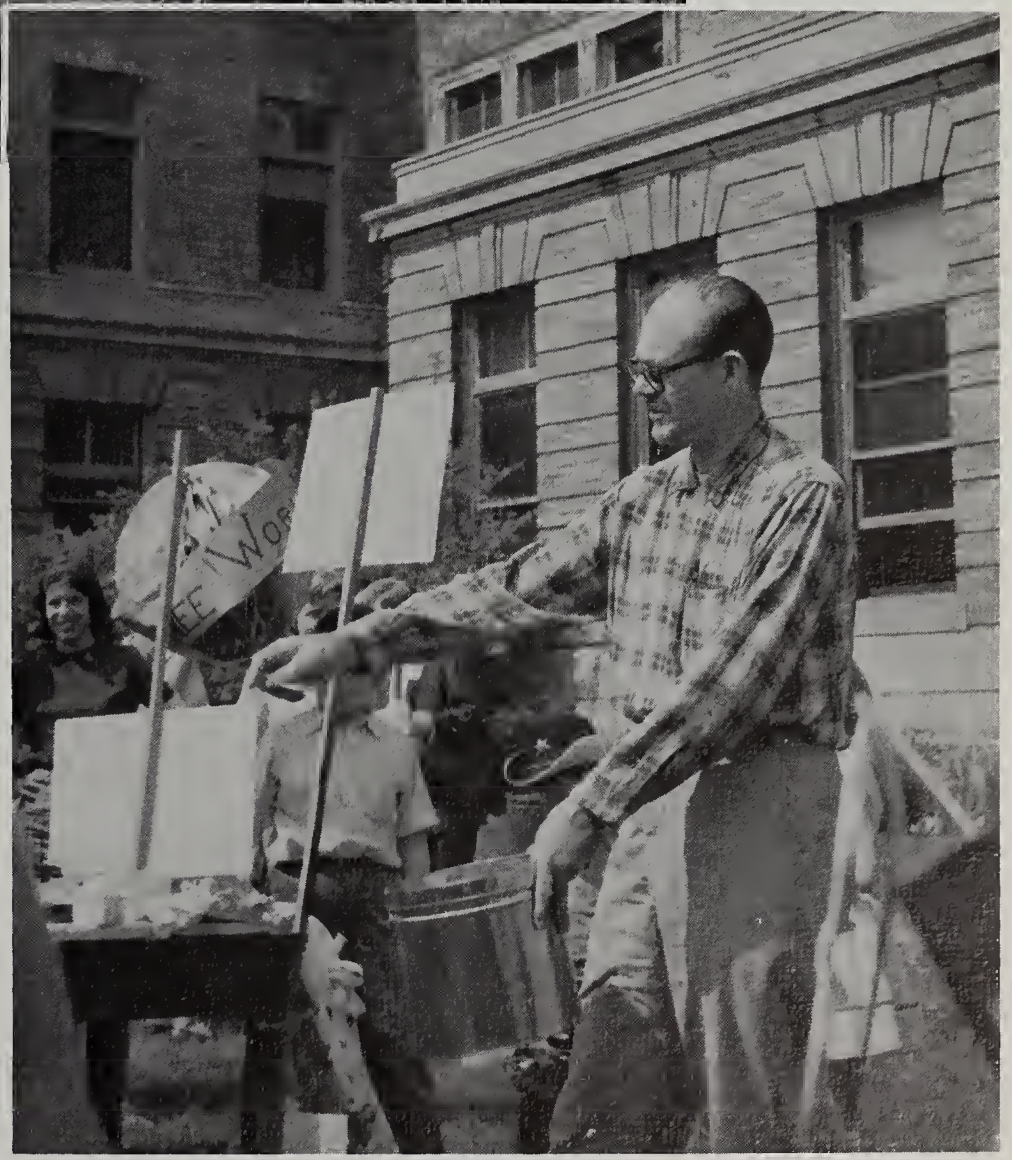
MUSICAL COMEDY
"SHE LOVES ME"

It may be Sunday. In a town that leaves space to live we take pleasure in being alone. Practiced in the art of people-watching, we wander through the Commons, high stepping over bustling, browsing birds. Through the parks, along the River, and behind the lights, we realize how little we mean to a city and how much a city can mean to us.





The warmth of spring brings out the best in us, and of us. The old faithfuls still young in heart, the respected, the beloved. If you don't want a hot dog try the Commuters for ice cream . . . or, going once, going twice, SOLD to the young lady in the straw hat. Child-like, a repeated scene, a repeated pleasure.

He stumbles through the door and pulls at his tie. She trips down the stairs and giggles. First date "I could have danced all night," but she was tired at 9. Best date of the year, "Did he say he'd call?" The birth of a great and wise tradition.

The intelligent trying to teach the unintelligent while the unintelligent try to write fast enough to record all the pearls of wisdom. No time to understand, or concentrate, just a machine, write, keep writing.

In the game they throw the ball to us. Most often it lands on the ground between us. We'd better get a bigger glove. This is big time. They are the pros, we the amateurs.

Where is the evidence of what they have taught? Where is the fruit? Do we have time to become intelligent, or are we too busy? . . . Do you read me? No. Are you with me? Not really. Then . . . yes. You want to shout "I see, I see." And you want to yell, "Put that on an exam so I can show that I see!" But mostly they don't, or maybe they decide it's worth 5 points.

“May we keep your paper on reserve?” What’s the use. Ambition surrenders to inferiority and inadequacy. There’s the “hello” in the corridor, as the amateur to the pro, but nevertheless, “hello.” The gulf diminishes. “I’d like to discuss it with you.” A step further into the unconquerable regions. Still, “hello” in the halls and still “fine thanks,” but also “were you able to get to see ‘The Aresteia’?” Or “How are your children?” and “I hope you and Mrs. Langer will be able to come to Olde English.”

The "bachelor" too will eventually fall as all mighty pillars must crumble—Bless the frail freshman who said, "a fief is a bundle of rice" and the learned one who says "a loose liver is not akin to a floating kidney."

We will swear, smoke and fume, insert big poisonous pins in life-like dolls. What do we want? . . . A cup of coffee . . . I have no Friday classes . . . Time for a cig? . . . Thank God for a triple-spaced typewriter!

Be that as it may, someday we shall recall these friendships and will we have learned?

Field Work is a trial run. With one foot in the college and the other in the cold, cruel world the senior tastes briefly what graduation may bring. The summer job was different; field work is closer to the real thing. The Home Ec. girl may find herself on television, the Business senior an assistant to a buyer in a department store, and a Pub major an assistant to an editor. But it's a trial run; she still has until June to hide in the college world.
